

I support restricting telemarketers, but must say that the FCC rules MUST NOT be allowed to trump more stringent state no-call lists. I recently moved from Indiana, and its list was almost completely effective in stopping calls. The proposed "18 month relationship" exemption is particularly bad- the telephone carriers would never let you alone! Please let states be even more restrictive about what telemarketers can do, or base the federal rules on the most restrictive state laws.